COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO'S
MOTIONS TO ENJOIN SECTION 9(a)
OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 13768

Case No. 17-cv-00574-WHO

CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO, Plaintiff,
v.
DONALD J. TRUMP, et al.,
Defendants.

INTRODUCTION

This case involves Executive Order 13768, “Enhancing Public Safety in the Interior of the United States,” which, in addition to outlining a number of immigration enforcement policies, purports to “[e]nsure that jurisdictions that fail to comply with applicable Federal law do not receive Federal funds, except as mandated by law” and to establish a procedure whereby “sanctuary jurisdictions” shall be ineligible to receive federal grants. Executive Order 13768, 82 Fed. Reg. 8799 (Jan. 25, 2017) (the “Executive Order”). In two related actions, the County of Santa Clara and the City and County of San Francisco have challenged Section 9 of the Executive Order as facially unconstitutional and have brought motions for preliminary injunction seeking to enjoin its enforcement. See County of Santa Clara v. Trump, No. 17-cv-0574-WHO; City and County of San Francisco v. Trump, 17-cv-0485-WHO.

1 The Counties challenge the enforcement provision of the Order, Section 9(a), on several 2 grounds: first, it violates the separation of powers doctrine enshrined in the Constitution because it 3 improperly seeks to wield congressional spending powers; second, it is so overbroad and coercive 4 that even if the President had spending powers, the Order would clearly exceed them and violate 5 the Tenth Amendment’s prohibition against commandeering local jurisdictions; third, it is so 6 vague and standardless that it violates the Fifth Amendment’s Due Process Clause and is void for 7 vagueness; and, finally, because it seeks to deprive local jurisdictions of congressionally allocated 8 funds without any notice or opportunity to be heard, it violates the procedural due process
9 requirements of the Fifth Amendment.¹

10 The Government does not respond to the Counties’ constitutional challenges but argues 11 that the Counties lack standing because the Executive Order did not change existing law and 12 because the Counties have not been named “sanctuary jurisdictions” pursuant to the Order. It 13 explained for the first time at oral argument that the Order is merely an exercise of the President’s 14 “bully pulpit” to highlight a changed approach to immigration enforcement. Under this 15 interpretation, Section 9(a) applies only to three federal grants in the Departments of Justice and 16 Homeland Security that already have conditions requiring compliance with 8 U.S.C. 1373. This 17 interpretation renders the Order toothless; the Government can already enforce these three grants 18 by the terms of those grants and can enforce 8 U.S.C. 1373 to the extent legally possible under the 19 terms of existing law. Counsel disavowed any right through the Order for the Government to 20 affect any other part of the billions of dollars in federal funds the Counties receive every year.

21 It is heartening that the Government’s lawyers recognize that the Order cannot do more 22 constitutionally than enforce existing law. But Section 9(a), by its plain language, attempts to 23

24 ¹ San Francisco also brings a facial challenge to 8 U.S.C. § 1373, arguing that the statute is 25 unconstitutional under the Tenth Amendment because “the whole object” of that section is to 26 “direct the functioning” of state governments. It seeks an injunction enjoining enforcement of 27 Section 1373, or alternatively, because it believes it complies with Section 1373, an injunction 28 preventing the Government from taking adverse action against it on the basis that it has failed to comply with that Section. Briefing on this issue was intermingled with the attack on the Executive Order, and did not adequately address the important issues raised. At the Case Management Conference on May 2, 2017, at 1:30 p.m. we will discuss litigation of this portion of the City’s case.

1 reach all federal grants, not merely the three mentioned at the hearing. The rest of the Order is 2 broader still, addressing all federal funding. And if there was doubt about the scope of the Order, 3 the President and Attorney General have erased it with their public comments. The President has 4 called it “a weapon” to use against jurisdictions that disagree with his preferred policies of 5 immigration enforcement, and his press secretary has reiterated that the President intends to ensure 6 that “counties and other institutions that remain sanctuary cites don’t get federal government 7 funding in compliance with the executive order.” The Attorney General has warned that 8 jurisdictions that do not comply with Section 1373 would suffer “withholding grants, termination 9 of grants, and disbarment or ineligibility for future grants,” and the “claw back” of any funds 10 previously awarded. Section 9(a) is not reasonably susceptible to the new, narrow interpretation 11 offered at the hearing.

12 Although the Government’s new interpretation of the Order is not legally plausible, in 13 effect it appears to put the parties in general agreement regarding the Order’s constitutional 14 limitations. The Constitution vests the spending powers in Congress, not the President, so the 15 Order cannot constitutionally place new conditions on federal funds. Further, the Tenth 16 Amendment requires that conditions on federal funds be unambiguous and timely made; that they 17 bear some relation to the funds at issue; and that the total financial incentive not be coercive.
18 Federal funding that bears no meaningful relationship to immigration enforcement cannot be 19 threatened merely because a jurisdiction chooses an immigration enforcement strategy of which 20 the President disapproves.

21 To succeed in their motions, the Counties must show that they are likely to face immediate 22 irreparable harm absent an injunction, that they are likely to succeed on the merits, and that the 23 balance of harms and public interest weighs in their favor. The Counties have met this burden.
24 They have demonstrated that they have standing to challenge the Order and are currently suffering 25 irreparable harm, not only because the Order has caused and will cause them constitutional 26 injuries by violating the separation of powers doctrine and depriving them of their Tenth and Fifth 27 Amendment rights, but also because the Order has caused budget uncertainty by threatening to 28 deprive the Counties of hundreds of millions of dollars in federal grants that support core services

1 in their jurisdictions. They have established that they are likely to succeed on the merits of their 2 claims and that the balance of harms and public interest decisively weigh in favor of an injunction.
 3 The Counties' motions for preliminary injunction against Section 9(a) of the Executive Order are 4 GRANTED as further described below.

5 That said, this injunction does nothing more than implement the effect of the 6 Government's flawed interpretation of the Order. It does not affect the ability of the Attorney 7 General or the Secretary to enforce existing conditions of federal grants or 8 U.S.C. 1373, nor does 8 it impact the Secretary's ability to develop regulations or other guidance defining what a sanctuary 9 jurisdiction is or designating a jurisdiction as such. It does prohibit the Government from 10 exercising Section 9(a) in a way that violates the Constitution.

11 BACKGROUND

12 I. THE EXECUTIVE ORDER

13 On January 25, 2017, President Donald J. Trump issued Executive Order 13768, 14 "Enhancing Public Safety in the Interior of the United States." See Harris Decl. ¶ 2; Ex. A ("EO")
 15 (SC Dkt. No. 36-1). In outlining the Executive Order's purpose, Section 1 reads, in part, 16 "Sanctuary jurisdictions across the United States willfully violate Federal law in an attempt to 17 shield aliens from removal from the United States." EO §1. Section 2 states that the policy of the 18 executive branch is to "[e]nsure that jurisdictions that fail to comply with applicable Federal law 19 do not receive Federal funds, except as mandated by law." EO §2(c).

20 Section 9, titled "Sanctuary Jurisdictions" lays out this policy in more detail. It reads:

21 Sec. 9. Sanctuary Jurisdictions. It is the policy of the executive 22 branch to ensure, to the fullest extent of the law, that a State, or a political subdivision of a State, shall comply with 8 U.S.C. 1373.

23 (a) In furtherance of this policy, the Attorney General and the 24 Secretary, in their discretion and to the extent consistent with law, shall ensure that jurisdictions that willfully refuse to comply with 8 25 U.S.C. 1373 (sanctuary jurisdictions) are not eligible to receive Federal grants, except as deemed necessary for law enforcement 26 purposes by the Attorney General or the Secretary. The Secretary has the authority to designate, in his discretion and to the extent consistent with law, a jurisdiction as a sanctuary jurisdiction. The 27 Attorney General shall take appropriate enforcement action against any entity that violates 8 U.S.C. 1373, or which has in effect a 28 statute, policy, or practice that prevents or hinders the enforcement of Federal law.

(b) To better inform the public regarding the public safety threats associated with sanctuary jurisdictions, the Secretary shall utilize the Declined Detainer Outcome Report or its equivalent and, on a weekly basis, make public a comprehensive list of criminal actions committed by aliens and any jurisdiction that ignored or otherwise failed to honor any detainers with respect to such aliens.

(c) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget is directed to obtain and provide relevant and responsive information on all Federal grant money that currently is received by any sanctuary jurisdiction.

EO §9.

Section 3 of the Order, titled “Definitions,” incorporates the definitions listed in 8 U.S.C. § 1101. EO §3. Section 1101 does not define “sanctuary jurisdiction.” The term is not defined anywhere in the Executive Order. Similarly, neither section 1101 nor the Order defines what it means for a jurisdiction to “willfully refuse to comply” with Section 1373 or for a policy to “prevent[] or hinder[] the enforcement of Federal law.” EO §9(a).

II. SECTION 1373

Section 1373, to which Section 9 refers, prohibits local governments from restricting government officials or entities from communicating immigration status information to ICE. It states in relevant part:

(a) In General. Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal, State, or local law, a Federal, State, or local government entity or official may not prohibit, or in any way restrict, any government entity or official from sending to, or receiving from, the Immigration and Naturalization Service information regarding the citizenship or immigration status, lawful or unlawful, of any individual.

(b) Additional Authority of Government Entities. Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal, State, or local law, no person or agency may prohibit, or in any way restrict, a Federal, State, or local government entity from doing any of the following with respect to information regarding the immigration status, lawful or unlawful, of any individual:

- (1) Sending such information to, or requesting or receiving such information from, the Immigration and Naturalization Service.
- (2) Maintaining such information.
- (3) Exchanging such information with any other Federal, State, or local government entity.

1 8 U.S.C. 1373.

2 In July, 2016, the U.S. Department of Justice issued guidance linking two federal grant
3 programs, the State Criminal Alien Assistance Program (“SCAAP”) and Edward Byrne Memorial 4 Justice Assistance Grant (“JAG”) to compliance with Section 1373.² This guidance states that all 5 applicants for these two grant programs are required to “assure and certify compliance with all 6 applicable federal statutes, including Section 1373, as well as all applicable federal regulations, 7 policies, guidelines, and requirements.” Id. The Department has indicated that the Community 8 Oriented Policing Services Grant (COPS) is also conditioned on compliance with Section 1373.

9 III. CIVIL DETAINER REQUESTS

10 An ICE civil detainer request asks a local law enforcement agency to continue to hold an 11 inmate who is in local jail because of actual or suspected violations of state criminal laws for up to 12 48 hours after his or her scheduled release so that ICE can determine if it wants to take that 13 individual into custody. See 8 C.F.R. § 287.7; Neusel Decl. ¶9; Marquez Decl., Ex. C at 3 (SC 14 Dkt. No. 29-3). ICE civil detainer requests are voluntary and local governments are not required
15 to honor them. See 8 C.F.R. § 287.7(a); Galarza v. Szalczyk, 745 F.3d 634, 643 (3d Cir. 2014) 16 (“[S]ettled constitutional law clearly establishes that [immigration detainers] must be deemed 17 requests” because any other interpretation would render them unconstitutional under the Tenth 18 Amendment). Several courts have held that it is a violation of the Fourth Amendment for local 19 jurisdictions to hold suspected or actual removable aliens subject to civil detainer requests because 20 civil detainer requests are often not supported by an individualized determination of probable 21 cause that a crime has been committed. See Morales v. Chadbourne, 793 F.3d 208, 215-217 (1st 22 Cir. 2015); Miranda-Olivares v. Clackamas Cnty., No. 3:12-cv-02317-ST, 2014 WL 1414305, at 23 *9-11 (D. Or. Apr. 11, 2014). ICE does not reimburse local jurisdictions for the cost of detaining 24 individuals in response to a civil detainer request and does not indemnify local jurisdictions for

3 IV. THE COUNTIES' POLICIES

4 A. Santa Clara's Policies

5 Santa Clara asserts that its local policies and practices with regard to federal immigration 6 enforcement are at odds with the Executive Order's provisions regarding Section 1373. SC Mot.
7 at 5. (SC Dkt. No. 26). In 2010, the Santa Clara County Board of Supervisors adopted a 8 Resolution prohibiting Santa Clara employees from using County resources to transmit any 9 information to ICE that was collected in the course of providing critical services or benefits.
10 Marquez Decl. ¶27 (SC Dkt. No. 29) & Ex. G (SC Dkt. No. 29-7); Neusel Decl. ¶7 (SC Dkt. No.
11 31); L. Smith Decl. ¶6 (SC Dkt. No. 35). The Resolution also prohibits employees from initiating 12 an inquiry or enforcement action based solely on the individual's actual or suspected immigration 13 status, national origin, race or ethnicity, or English-speaking ability, or from using County 14 resources to pursue an individual solely because of an actual or suspected violation of immigration 15 law. Id. In October, 2016, after receiving DOJ guidance that JAG and SCAAP funds would be 16 conditioned on compliance with Section 1373, Santa Clara decided not to participate in those 17 programs. Marquez Decl. ¶ 29 & Ex. H (SC Dkt. No. 29-8).

18 Santa Clara also asserts that its policies with regard to ICE civil detainer requests are 19 inconsistent with the Executive Order and the President's stated immigration enforcement agenda.
20 Prior to late 2011, Santa Clara responded to and honored ICE civil detainer requests, housing an 21 average of 135 additional inmates each day at a daily cost of approximately $159 per inmate.
22 Neusel Decl. ¶4. When the County raised concerns about the costs associated with complying 23 with detainer requests and potential civil liability, ICE confirmed that it would not reimburse the 24 County or indemnify it for the associated costs and liabilities. Marquez Decl. ¶¶ 21-15 & Exs. B-25 D.

26 Santa Clara subsequently convened a task force and adopted a new policy where the 27 County agreed to honor requests for individuals with serious or violent felony convictions, but 28 only if ICE would reimburse the County for the cost of holding those individuals. Neusel Decl.

1 ¶6; Marquez Decl. ¶26 & Ex. E. ICE has never agreed to reimburse the County for any costs, so 2 since November 2011 the County has declined to honor all ICE detainer requests. Id.

3 B. San Francisco's Policies

4 San Francisco's sanctuary city policies are contained in Chapters 12H and 12I of its 5 Administrative Code. Eisenberg Decl. Exs. A-B (SF Dkt. No. 28). The stated purpose of these 6 laws is "to foster respect and trust between law enforcement and residents, to protect limited local 7 resources, to encourage cooperation between residents and City officials, including especially law 8 enforcement and public health officers and employees, and to ensure community security, and due 9 process for all." S.F. Admin Code § 12I.1.

10 As relevant to Section 1373, Chapter 12H prohibits San Francisco departments, agencies, 11 commissions, officers, and employees from using San Francisco funds or resources to assist in 12 enforcing federal immigration law or gathering or disseminating information regarding an 13 individual's release status, or other confidential identifying information (which as defined does not 14 include immigration status), unless such assistance is required by federal or state law. S.F. Admin 15 Code § 12H.2. Although Chapter 12H previously prohibited city employees from sharing 16 information regarding individuals' immigration status, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors 17 removed this restriction in July, 2016, due to concerns that the provision violated Section 1373.

18 With regard to civil detainer requests, Chapter 12I prohibits San Francisco law 19 enforcement from detaining an individual, otherwise eligible for release from custody, solely on 20 the basis of a civil immigration detainer request. S.F. Admin Code § 12I.3. It also prohibits local 21 law enforcement from providing ICE with advanced notice that an individual will be released from 22 custody, unless the individual meets certain criteria. S.F. Admin Code § 12I.3. Chapter 12I.3.(e) 23 provides that a "[l]aw enforcement official shall not arrest or detain an individual, or provide any 24 individual's personal information to a federal immigration officer, on the basis of an 25 administrative warrant, prior deportation order, or other civil immigration document based solely 26 on alleged violations of the civil provisions of immigration laws." S.F. Admin Code § 12I.3.(e).
27 San Francisco explains that it adopted these policies due to concerns that holding people in 28 response to civil detainers would violate the Fourth Amendment and require it to dedicate scarce

1 law enforcement personnel and resources to holding these individuals. Hennessy Decl. ¶11 (SF 2 Dkt. No. 24).

3 V. THE COUNTIES' FEDERAL FUNDING

4 A. Santa Clara's Federal Funding

5 In the 2015-2016 fiscal year, Santa Clara received approximately $1.7 billion in federal 6 and federally dependent funds, making up roughly 35% of the County's total revenues. J. Smith
7 Decl. ¶6; Marquez Decl. ¶8. This figure includes federal funds provided through entitlement 8 programs.

9 Most of the County's federal funds are used to provide essential services to its residents.
10 Marquez Decl. ¶¶ 5-8. In support of its motion, the County includes a number of declarations 11 outlining how a loss of any substantial amount of federal funding would force it to make 12 substantial cut backs to safety-net programs and essential services and would require it to lay off 13 thousands of employees. It highlights that the County's Valley Medical Center, the only public 14 safety-net healthcare provider in the County, relies on $1 billion in federal funds each year, which 15 covers up to 70% of its total annual costs. Lorenz Decl. ¶¶ 3, 7 (SC Dkt. No. 28). A loss of all 16 federal funds would shut down Valley Medical Center and cut off the only healthcare option for 17 thousands of poor, elderly, and vulnerable people in the County. Id. ¶ 8. It further highlights that 18 Santa Clara's Social Services Agency, which provides various services to vulnerable residents, 19 including child welfare and protection, aid to needy families, and support for disabled children, 20 adults and the elderly, receives roughly 40% of its budget, $300 million, from federal funds.
21 Menicocci Decl. ¶5 (SC Dkt. No. 30). The County's Public Health Department receives 40% of 22 its budget and $38 million in federal funds. And the County's Office of Emergency Services, 23 whose job is to prepare for and respond to disasters such as earthquakes and terrorism, receives 24 more than two-thirds of its budget from federal funds. Reed Decl. ¶¶ 3-20 (SC Dkt. No. 32).

25 In the 2014-2015 fiscal year, the County received over $565 million in non-entitlement 26 federal grants. See Marquez Decl. Ex. A at 11-12 (SC Dkt. No. 29-1) (showing $338 million in 27 federal grants subject to OMB auditing requirements and an additional $227 million in federal 28 grants through the Department of Housing and Urban Development). This $565 million

1 represents approximately 11% of the County’s budget.

2 B. San Francisco’s Federal Funding

3 San Francisco’s yearly budget is approximately $9.6 billion; it receives approximately $1.2
 4 billion of this from the federal government. Rosenfield Decl. ¶9 (SF Dkt. No. 22). San Francisco 5 uses these federal funds to provide vital services such as medical care, social services, and meals 6 to vulnerable residents, to maintain and upgrade roads and public transportation, and to make 7 needed seismic upgrades. Whitehouse Decl. ¶16 (SF Dkt. No. 23). Losing all, or a substantial 8 amount, of federal funds would have significant effects on core San Francisco programs: federal 9 funds make up 100% of Medicare for San Francisco residents, Rosenfield Decl. ¶ 29; 30% of the 10 budget for San Francisco’s Department of Emergency Management, id. ¶¶25-27; 33% of the 11 budget for San Francisco’s Human Services Agency, id. ¶¶13-18; and 40% of the budget for San 12 Francisco’s Department of Public Health, id. ¶¶19-24.

13 Approximately 20% of these federal funds, or $240 million, are from federal grants. Id.
 14 ¶29. San Francisco also receives $800 million each year in federal multi-year grants, primarily for 15 public infrastructure projects. Id. ¶11.

16 San Francisco must adopt a balanced budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 2017.
 17 Whitehouse Decl. ¶16. Under local law, the Mayor must submit a balanced budget to the Board of 18 Supervisors by June 1 and make fundamental budget decisions by May 15, including whether to 19 create a budget reserve to account for the potential loss of significant funds. Id. ¶5-6, 8. Any 20 money placed in the budget reserve would not be available to be used for other programs or 21 services in the coming fiscal year. Id. ¶9.

22 LEGAL STANDARD

23 “A plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction must establish that he is likely to succeed on 24 the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief, that the 25 balance of equities tips in his favor, and that an injunction is in the public interest.” Winter v.
 26 Nat’l Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008). This has been interpreted as a four-part 27 conjunctive test, not a four-factor balancing test. However, the Ninth Circuit has held that a 28 plaintiff may also obtain an injunction if he has demonstrated “serious questions going to the

1 merits” that the balance of hardships “tips sharply” in his favor, that he is likely to suffer 2 irreparable harm, and that an injunction is in the public interest. See Alliance for the Wild Rockies 3 v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1131-35 (9th Cir. 2011).

4 DISCUSSION

5 I. JUSTICIABILITY

6 The Government argues that the Counties’ claims against the Executive Order are not 7 justiciable because the Counties cannot establish an injury-in-fact, which is necessary to establish 8 standing, and because their claims are not ripe for review. These principles of standing and 9 ripeness go to whether this court has jurisdiction to hear the Counties’ claims. I conclude that the 10 Counties have demonstrated Article III standing to challenge the Executive Order and that their 11 claims are ripe for review.

12 A. Standing

13 Article III, section 2 of the Constitution limits the jurisdiction of the federal courts to 14 “Cases” and “Controversies.” Massachusetts v. EPA, 549 U.S. 497, 516 (2007); see U.S. Const.
 15 art. III, §, cl. 1. “Standing is an essential and unchanging part of the case-or-controversy 16 requirement.” Lujan v. Defs. of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560 (1992). To establish standing a 17 plaintiff must demonstrate “that it has suffered a concrete and particularized injury that is either 18 actual or imminent, that the injury is fairly traceable to the defendant, and that it is likely that a 19 favorable decision will redress that injury.” Massachusetts, 549 U.S. at 517 (citing Lujan, 504 20 U.S. at 560-61).

21 The Counties contend that they have standing to challenge the Executive Order because the 22 Order threatens to defund, or otherwise bring enforcement action against, states and local 23 jurisdictions that are “sanctuary jurisdictions.” Although the Order does not clearly define 24 “sanctuary jurisdictions,” it directs the Attorney General and Secretary to ensure that jurisdictions 25 that “willfully refuse to comply with 8 U.S.C. 1373 (sanctuary jurisdictions) are not eligible to 26 receive Federal grants” and elsewhere equates jurisdictions that refuse to honor detainer requests 27 with the term “sanctuary jurisdictions.” It further directs the Attorney General to bring 28 “enforcement action” against jurisdictions with policies that “hinder[] the enforcement of Federal 1 law.”

2 The Counties represent that they have “sanctuary policies” that are likely to subject them to 3 enforcement or defunding under the Order. They assert that enforcement under the Order would 4 result in injury-in-fact in the form of cuts to federal funds and whatever other penalty the 5 Government seeks to impose through its “enforcement action.” As a result of this threat of major 6 cuts to federal funding, the Order is also causing present injury-in-fact in the form of budget 7 uncertainty. Alternatively, attempting to comply with the Order would also cause injury, as it 8 would require them to change their local policies in ways that conflict with their local judgment on 9 how best to ensure public safety and require them to commit substantial resources to assist in 10 enforcing federal immigration laws.

11 The Government raises two primary arguments against the Counties’ claims of standing.
12 First, it asserts that the Counties cannot demonstrate injury-in-fact traceable to the Executive 13 Order because the Order does not change the law in any way, but merely directs the Attorney 14 General and Secretary to enforce existing law. Second, it argues that the Counties’ claims of 15 injury are not sufficiently “concrete” or “imminent” because the Government has not designated 16 either County as a “sanctuary jurisdiction” and has not withheld any federal funds. I will address 17 these arguments in turn.

18 1. Whether the Executive Order Changes the Law

19 The Government’s primary defense is that the Order does not change the law, but merely 20 directs the Attorney General and Secretary to enforce existing law. In its briefing, the 21 Government emphasized Section 9(a)’s provision that it will be implemented “to the extent 22 consistent with law.” It argued that to the extent the Order directs the Attorney General and 23 Secretary to newly condition federal funds on compliance with Section 1373, it could not lawfully 24 do so and so it does not. It asserted, “If the grant language does not require compliance with 25 Section 1373, the Executive Order does not purport to give the Secretary or Attorney General the 26 unilateral authority to alter those terms.” SC Oppo. at 13. By this interpretation, Section 9 simply 27 directs the Attorney General and Secretary to ensure that grants that are already conditioned on 28 compliance with Section 1373 are not remitted to jurisdictions that fail to meet that requirement.

1 At the hearing, the Government went further and explicitly disclaimed the ability under the 2 Executive Order to add conditions to grants authorized by Congress or to enforce the Order 3 against any but three grant programs, SCAAP, JAG and COPS. Government counsel urged me to 4 adopt this narrow reading of the Order, arguing that well-established rules of construction require 5 courts to adopt narrow readings when broader ones would read in constitutional problems.

6 Where a construction of a statute “would raise serious constitutional problems, the Court 7 will construe the statute to avoid such problems unless such construction is plainly contrary to the 8 intent of Congress.” Edward J. DeBartolo Corp. v. Florida Gulf Coast Bldg. & Const. Trades 9 Council, 485 U.S. 568, 575 (1988).³ “[A]s between two possible interpretations of a statute, by 10 one of which it would be unconstitutional and by the other valid, our plain duty is to adopt that 11 which will save the Act.” Blodgett v. Holden, 275 U.S. 142, 148 (1927). The primary purpose of 12 the doctrine is to “minimize disagreement between the branches by preserving congressional
14 U.S., 523 U.S. 224, 238 (1998).

15 “This canon is followed out of respect for Congress, which we assume legislates in the 16 light of constitutional limitations.” Rust v. Sullivan, 500 U.S. 173, 191 (1991). This canon of 17 construction is limited; to adopt an alternate construction the statute must be “readily susceptible” 18 to that construction. United States ex rel. Attorney General v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 213 U.S.
19 366, 409 (1909). It is not the job of the courts “to insert missing terms into the statute or adopt an 20 interpretation precluded by [its] plain language.” Foti v. City of Menlo Park, 146 F.3d 629, 639 21 (9th Cir. 1998).

22 As a preliminary matter, a narrow construction does not limit a plaintiffs’ standing to 23 challenge a law that is subject to multiple interpretations. See Virginia v. American Booksellers 24 Ass’n, Inc., 484 U.S. 383, 392 (1988) (noting that a plaintiff’s standing may be based on its 25 interpretation of the statute even when a narrower interpretation is offered). Therefore, the 26

27 ³ The Supreme Court has declined to apply this canon of construction to agency actions and it is 28 unclear that it would apply to an Executive Order. F.C.C. v. Fox Television Stations, Inc., 556 U.S. 502, 516 (2009) (“We know of no precedent for applying [the canon of constitutional avoidance] to limit the scope of an authorized executive action.”).

1 Government’s proposed narrow construction does not destroy justiciability.

2 With regards to the merits of the Government’s construction, the Order is not readily 3 susceptible to the Government’s narrow interpretation. Indeed, “[t]o read [the Order] as the 4 Government desires requires rewriting, not just reinterpretation.” U.S. v. Stevens, 559 U.S. 460, 5 481 (2010).

6 While the Government urges that the Order “does not purport to give the Secretary or 7 Attorney General the unilateral authority” to impose new conditions on federal grants, that is 8 exactly what the Order purports to do. It directs the Attorney General and the Secretary to ensure 9 that “sanctuary jurisdictions” are “not eligible to receive” federal grants. EO §9(a)(emphasis 10 added). Whether a jurisdiction is eligible to receive federal grants is determined by the conditions 11 on those grants and the characteristics, acts, and choices of the jurisdiction. See BLACK’S LAW 12 DICTIONARY 634 (10th ed. 2014) (defining “eligible” as “Fit and proper to be selected or to 13 receive a benefit.”). Section 9(a)’s language directing the Attorney General and Secretary to 14 ensure that jurisdictions that “willfully refuse to comply” with Section 1373 are “not eligible” for 15 federal grants therefore purports to delegate to the Attorney General and the Secretary the 16 authority to place a new condition on federal grants, compliance with Section 1373. And as 17 Government counsel agreed at the hearing, the power to place conditions on funds belongs 18 exclusively to Congress.

19 The Government attempts to read out all of Section 9(a)’s unconstitutional directives to 20 render it an ominous, misleading, and ultimately toothless threat. It urges that Section 9(a) can be 21 saved by reading the defunding provision narrowly and “consistent with law,” so that all it does is 22 direct the Attorney General and Secretary to enforce existing grant conditions. But this 23 interpretation is in conflict with the Order’s express language and is plainly not what the Order 24 says. The defunding provision is entirely inconsistent with law in its stated purpose and directives 25 because it instructs the Attorney General and the Secretary to do something that only Congress has 26 the authority to do—place new conditions on federal funds. If Section 9(a) does not direct the 27 Attorney General and Secretary to place new conditions on federal funds then it only authorizes 28 them to do something they already have the power to do, enforce existing grant requirements.

1 Effectively, the Government argues that Section 9(a) is “valid” and does not raise constitutional 2 issues as long as it does nothing at all. But a construction so narrow that it renders a legal action
3 legally meaningless cannot possibly be reasonable and is clearly inconsistent with the Order’s 4 broad intent.

5 At the hearing, Government counsel argued that the Order applies only to grants issued by 6 the Department of Justice and the Department of Homeland Security because it is directed only at 7 the Attorney General and Secretary of Homeland Security. This reading is similarly implausible.
8 Nothing in Section 9(a) limits the “Federal grants” affected to those only given through the 9 Departments of Justice and Homeland Security. The Department of Justice is responsible for 10 federal law enforcement throughout the country, not just within its own Department. So when the 11 Attorney General is directed to “ensure that jurisdictions that willfully refuse to comply with 8 12 U.S.C. 1373 (sanctuary jurisdictions) are not eligible to receive Federal grants, except as deemed 13 necessary for law enforcement purposes by the Attorney General or the Secretary” and to “take 14 appropriate enforcement action against any entity that violates 8 U.S.C. 1373, or which has in 15 effect a statute, policy, or practice that prevents or hinders the enforcement of Federal law,” it is 16 not reasonable to interpret the directive as applying solely to law enforcement grants that the 17 Attorney General and Secretary are specifically given authority to exempt from the Order.

18 Nor is counsel’s narrow interpretation supported by the rest of the Order. Two examples 19 suffice. Section 9(c) instructs the Director of the Office of Management and Budget “to obtain 20 and provide relevant and responsive information on all Federal grant money that currently is 21 received by any sanctuary jurisdiction.” This directive is not limited to grants issued by the 22 Departments of Justice and Homeland Security. And Section 2(c) announces a policy to “ensure 23 that jurisdictions that fail to comply with applicable Federal law do not receive Federal funds, 24 except as mandated by law.” The Order’s structure and language make clear that a “sanctuary 25 jurisdiction,” which the Secretary will eventually define, should change its policies or risk loss of 26 all federal grants, and Section 9(a) provides the means to do so.

27 The purpose of adopting a plausible valid construction over one that would result in 28 constitutional issues is to save an Act that would otherwise fall on constitutional grounds. A

1 construction so narrow that it reads out any legal force does not save the Act and obviates the 2 entire purpose of adopting a narrow reading. At the hearing, Government counsel explained that 3 the Order is an example of the President’s use of the bully pulpit and, even if read narrowly to 4 have no legal effect, serves the purpose of highlighting the President’s focus on immigration
5 enforcement. While the President is entitled to highlight his policy priorities, an Executive Order
6 carries the force of law. Adopting the Government’s proposed reading would transform an Order 7 that purports to create real legal obligations into a mere policy statement and would work to 8 mislead individuals who are not able to conclude, by reading Section 9(a) itself, that it is fully self-9 cancelling and carries no legal weight.

10 The Supreme Court has acknowledged that applying a narrow construction to an 11 unconstitutionally overbroad statute does not address the confusion and potential deterrent effect 12 caused by the language of the law itself. See, Erznoznik v. City of Jacksonville, 422 U.S. 205, 216
13 (1975) (concluding, in a First Amendment case, that a narrow construction of an overbroad statute 14 was likely inappropriate because the “deterrent effect on legitimate expression is both real and 15 substantial.”). As discussed below, the coercive effects of the Order’s broad language counsel 16 against adopting a narrow construction that deprives it of any legal meaning.

17 The Government’s construction is not reasonable. It requires a complete rewriting of the 18 Order’s language and does not “save” any part of Section 9(a)’s legal effect. There is no doubt 19 that Section 9(a), as written, changes the law.

20 2. Pre-enforcement Standing

21 The Counties argue that they have standing to challenge the Executive Order because they 22 have demonstrated a well-founded belief that the Order will be enforced against them. In turn, the 23 Government argues that the Counties lack standing because the Government has not yet 24 designated the Counties as “sanctuary jurisdictions” or withheld funds.

25 Because the Counties have not yet suffered a loss of funds or other enforcement action 26 under the Executive Order, this case is analogous to the many cases addressing pre-enforcement 27 standing. These cases establish that a plaintiff may demonstrate pre-enforcement standing by 28 showing “an intention to engage in a course of conduct arguably affected with a constitutional

1 interest, but proscribed by a statute, and there exists a credible threat of prosecution thereunder.”
2 Babbitt v. Farm Workers, 442 U.S. 289, 298 (1979); see Steffel v. Thompson, 415 U.S. 452, 459
3 (1974) (“[I]t is not necessary that petitioner first expose himself to actual arrest or prosecution to 4 be entitled to challenge a statute that he claims deters the exercise of his constitutional rights”); 5 Susan B. Anthony List v. Driehaus, 134 S. Ct. 2334, 2342 (2014) (plaintiffs can demonstrate 6 standing by alleging “a credible threat of enforcement”); American Booksellers, 484 U.S. at 392 7 (plaintiffs can establish standing by demonstrating a “well-founded fear that the law will be 8 enforced against them.”).

9 At the hearing, the Government suggested that pre-enforcement review is generally only 10 available when there are criminal penalties or First Amendment issues at stake. While pre-11 enforcement cases often fall into these categories, pre-enforcement review is not so limited. In a 12 pre-enforcement case, just like any other case, courts are limited by “the primary conception that 13 federal judicial power is to be exercised . . . only at the instance of one who is himself immediately 14 harmed, or immediately threatened with harm, by the challenged action.” Poe v. Ullman, 367 U.S.
15 497, 504 (1961). The Court has repeatedly recognized that “where threatened action by 16 government is concerned, we do not require a plaintiff to expose himself to liability before 17 bringing suit to challenge the basis for the threat – for example, the constitutionality of a law 18 threatened to be enforced.” MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 129 (2007).
19 When a threatened injury has not yet been felt, “the question becomes whether any perceived 20 threat to respondents is sufficiently real and immediate to show an existing controversy” O’Shea v.
21 Littleton, 414 U.S. 488, 496 (1974), or whether it is merely “imaginary or speculative,” Younger v.
22 Harris, 401 U.S. 37, 42 (1971).

23 The pre-enforcement line of cases outlines a framework for answering this question in the 24 context of threatened civil or criminal enforcement action. Just as Article III standing is not 25 reserved for individuals who have suffered criminal penalties or First Amendment restrictions, 26 pre-enforcement review is not reserved for such individuals. See e.g. Terrace v. Thompson, 263
27 U.S. 197, 214 (1923) (noting that a plaintiff has standing to enjoin a law when the government 28 “threatens and is about to commence proceedings, either civil or criminal, to enforce such a law

1 against parties affected”); Village of Euclid v. Ambler Realty Co., 272 U.S. 365, 386 (1926)
2 (holding that a landowner bringing Fourteenth Amendment claims and facing only civil penalties 3 had pre-enforcement standing).

4 Many of the pre-enforcement cases recognize that First Amendment challenges raise an 5 additional consideration for standing purposes because a statute restricting First Amendment rights
6 may cause harm without any enforcement by “chilling speech.” See American Booksellers, at 393
7 (“[T]he alleged danger of this statute is, in large measure, one of self-censorship; a harm that can 8 be realized even without an actual prosecution.”). While this “chilling” effect is particularly 9 important in the First Amendment context, analogous concerns have been recognized in other 10 situations. For example, that a threat of legal action may coerce individuals to abandon their legal 11 rights is well recognized outside of First Amendment restrictions and was one of the driving 12 factors behind the creation of the Declaratory Judgment Act. See MedImmune, 549 U.S. at 129 13 (“The dilemma posed by that coercion—putting the challenger to the choice between abandoning 14 his rights or risking prosecution—is a dilemma that it was the very purpose of the Declaratory 15 Judgment Act to ameliorate.”). And courts have recognized that, outside the First Amendment 16 context, a law’s threat of enforcement may, on its own, cause present injury. See Village of 17 Euclid, 272 U.S. at 386. In Village of Euclid, the Court considered whether a landowner had pre-18 enforcement standing to challenge a local zoning ordinance that it alleged had drastically reduced 19 the market value of a particular piece of property by limiting its use and threatening to impose 20 penalties for zoning violations. Id. at 384. Although the landowner had not faced any 21 enforcement under the ordinance, the Court concluded the claims were justiciable because “injury 22 is inflicted by the mere existence and threatened enforcement of the ordinance” as “prospective 23 buyers . . . are deterred from buying any part of this land.” Id. 384-385.

24 In sum, the pre-enforcement cases reveal that an individual facing enforcement action may 25 establish standing by demonstrating a well-founded fear of enforcement and a threatened injury 26 that is “sufficiently real and imminent.” O’Shea, 414 U.S. at 496. One may also establish 27 standing by demonstrating that a well-founded fear of enforcement action is itself causing present 28 injury. See American Booksellers, at 393; Village of Euclid, 272 U.S. at 385.

1 As I discuss below, review of the Counties' allegations demonstrates that they have a well-2 founded fear of enforcement under the Executive Order. They have further demonstrated that 3 enforcement under the Order would deprive them of federal grants that they use to provide critical 4 services to their residents and that the "mere existence and threatened enforcement" of the Order is 5 causing them present injury in the form of budget uncertainty. They have demonstrated Article III 6 standing to challenge the Order.

7 a. The Counties' policies are proscribed by the language of the 8 Executive Order

9 Where it is not fully clear what conduct is proscribed by a statute, a well-founded fear of 10 enforcement may be based in part on a plaintiff's reasonable interpretation of what conduct is 11 proscribed. See American Booksellers, 484 U.S. at 392. This is true even if a narrower reading of 12 the statute may be available. Id. at 397.

13 In American Booksellers, the Supreme Court concluded that a group of booksellers had 14 standing to challenge a Virginia law that made it unlawful for any person to "knowingly display 15 for commercial purpose" visual or written material depicting sexual conduct "which is harmful to 16 juveniles." Id. at 386 (citing Va. Code § 18.2-391(a) (Supp. 1987)). The booksellers challenged 17 the statute on First Amendment grounds and alleged that they had standing because they had 18 identified 16 books that they intended to display and that they believed would be covered by the 19 statute. Id. Even though the statute had not been made effective and the State had not identified 20 specific materials that would be implicated by the statute, the Court concluded that this was 21 sufficient to establish Article III standing because "the law is aimed directly at plaintiffs, who, if 22 their interpretation of the statute is correct, will have to take significant and costly compliance 23 measures or risk criminal prosecution." Id. at 392. Further, while the government put forward a 24 narrow construction of the law that would have made the burden to booksellers and the public 25 "significantly less than that feared and asserted by plaintiffs," the Court did not consider this 26 construction in assessing the plaintiffs' standing. Id. at 397.

27 The Counties' policies are likely to subject them to enforcement given their reasonable 28 interpretation of what conduct and policies the Order purports to proscribe. Section 9(a) of the 1 Executive Order directs the Attorney General and the Secretary to “ensure” that “sanctuary 2 jurisdictions” are “not eligible to receive Federal grants.” EO §9(a). The Counties acknowledge 3 that the Executive Order does not clearly define “sanctuary jurisdictions” but note that the Order’s 4 language indicates that a “sanctuary jurisdiction” is, at a minimum, any jurisdiction that “willfully 5 refuse[s] to comply with 8 U.S.C. 1373.” The Government has not clarified what it means to 6 “willfully refuse to comply” with Section 1373, and indeed argues that the Counties lack standing 7 because the Attorney General and Secretary of Homeland Security have not yet figured that out.

8 SC Oppo. at 11 (“[T]he Attorney General and the Secretary of Homeland Security must determine 9 exactly what constitutes ‘willful refusal to comply with 8 U.S.C. § 1373’”). Despite this, on 10 March 27, 2017, Attorney General Sessions “urg[ed] states and local jurisdictions to comply with 11 these federal laws, including 8 U.S.C. Section 1373” and confirmed that “failure to remedy 12 violations could result in withholding grants, termination of grants, and disbarment or ineligibility 13 for future grants.” See RJN-2, Ex. D (“Sessions Press Conference”) (SF Dkt. No. 61-4).⁴

14 The Attorney General also stated that this policy was “entirely consistent with the 15 Department of Justice’s Office of Justice Program’s guidance that was issued just last summer 16 under the previous government.” Id. In the process of developing that guidance, the Inspector 17 General of the Department of Justice, Michael Horowitz, prepared a memorandum entitled 18 “Department of Justice Referral of Allegations of Potential Violations of 8 U.S.C. § 1373 by Grant 19 Recipients.” See RJN-1, Ex. A (Dkt. No. 29-1).⁵ The memorandum studies the policies of several 20 jurisdictions and discusses whether they might violate Section 1373. It supports a broad reading 21 of Section 1373 and specifically notes that San Francisco’s policy prohibiting City employees 22 from using “City funds or resources to assist in the enforcement of federal immigration law or to

28 ⁵ I take judicial notice of the Horowitz memorandum as a government memorandum that is not subject to reasonable dispute. Mack v. S. Bay Beer Distribs., Inc., 789 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir.
1986) (courts may judicially notice records and reports prepared by administrative bodies); government websites).

1 gather or disseminate information regarding the immigration status of individuals . . . unless such 2 assistance is required by federal or State statute” could run afoul of Section 1373 unless San 3 Francisco employees are aware that they are permitted to share immigration status information 4 with ICE. Id. The memo further suggests that policies prohibiting civil detainer requests, even if 5 they do not explicitly restrict sharing of immigration status information, may nevertheless affect 6 ICE’s interactions with local officials regarding immigration status requests and therefore raise 7 Section 1373 concerns. Id.

8 In addition to the potential that, under the Order, compliance with Section 1373 requires 9 compliance with detainer requests, the Order may also directly require states and local 10 governments to honor ICE detainer requests to avoid being designated “sanctuary jurisdictions.”
11 While the defunding provision in Section 9(a) seems to define “sanctuary jurisdictions” as those 12 that run afoul of Section 1373, Section 9(b) equates “sanctuary jurisdictions” with “any 13 jurisdiction that ignored or otherwise failed to honor any detainers with respect to [aliens that have 14 committed criminal actions].” This language raises the reasonable concern that a state or local 15 government may be designated a sanctuary jurisdiction, and subject to defunding, if it fails to 16 honor ICE detainer requests. This interpretation is supported by Section 9(a)’s broad grant of 17 discretion to the Secretary to designate jurisdictions as “sanctuary jurisdictions.” While the Order 18 states that the Secretary’s designation authority must be exercised “consistent with law,” with the 19 exception of the Order there are no laws regarding “sanctuary jurisdiction” designations: Section 9 20 gives the Secretary unlimited discretion.

21 This reading is also supported by Section 9(a)’s directive to the Attorney General to take 22 “appropriate enforcement action” against any jurisdiction that has a policy or practice that 23 “hinders the enforcement of federal law.” While the Order does not outline what policies 24 “hinder[] the enforcement of Federal law,” Attorney General Sessions recently suggested that a 25 local policy that prohibits compliance with detainer requests would constitute a “policy, or 26 practice that prevents or hinders the enforcement of Federal law.” See Sessions Press Conference 27 at 2 (“Unfortunately, some states and cities have adopted policies designed to frustrate this 28 enforcement of immigration laws. This includes refusing to detain known felons on the federal

1 detainer request, or otherwise failing to comply with these laws.”). Given Section 9(b)’s language 2 equating “sanctuary jurisdictions” with jurisdictions that fail to honor detainer requests, the 3 Secretary’s unlimited discretion in designating jurisdictions as “sanctuary jurisdictions,” and the 4 Order’s instruction that the Attorney General shall take “enforcement action” against jurisdictions
 5 that hinder the enforcement of federal law, which the Attorney General has indicated includes, at a 6 minimum, failure to honor detainer requests, the Order appears to proscribe states and local 7 jurisdictions from adopting policies that refuse to honor detainer requests.

8 Santa Clara’s policy, prohibiting local officials from using County funds to transmit 9 information collected in the course of providing critical services or benefits, could be considered a 10 restriction on the intergovernmental exchange of information regarding immigration status in 11 violation of Section 1373. Similar to Santa Clara, San Francisco prohibits the use of City funds or 12 resources “to assist in the enforcement of Federal immigration law.” S.F. Admin. Code § 12H.2.
 13 Although these policies do not directly prohibit communications with ICE, given the breadth of 14 the Order and the statements of the Attorney General, the Counties have a well-founded fear that 15 the Government may argue that they may sufficiently interfere with those communications in a 16 way that violates Section 1373. Further, the Counties do not honor civil detainer requests. Under 17 a broad reading, these policies may be considered an improper restriction on the intergovernmental 18 exchange of information in violation of Section 1373, falling within Section 9(b)’s language that 19 jurisdictions that fail to honor detainer requests are “sanctuary jurisdictions.”

20 In short, the Counties are likely to be designated “sanctuary jurisdictions” under their 21 reasonable interpretation of the Executive Order.

22 b. The Government has indicated an intent to enforce the Order 23 generally and against the Counties more specifically

24 In assessing whether enforcement action is likely, courts look to the past conduct of the 25 government, as well as the government’s statements and representations, to determine whether 26 enforcement is likely or simply “chimerical.” See Steffel, 415 U.S. at 459 (petitioner that had 27 twice been warned to stop handbilling, and whose companion had been arrested, had well-founded 28 fear of enforcement); Poe, 367 U.S. at 508 (1961) (“the fear of enforcement of provisions that

1 have during so many years gone uniformly and without exception unenforced” was “chimerical”).
 2 A plaintiff does not need to have been specifically threatened with enforcement action to show
 3 that enforcement action is likely. See Susan B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2345 (plaintiffs 4 demonstrated credible threat of enforcement where the law had previously been enforced against 5 them); American Booksellers, 484 U.S. at 393 (plaintiffs had credible threat of enforcement even 6 though newly enacted law had not become effective and no enforcement action had been brought 7 or threatened under it). However, “the threat of enforcement must at least be ‘credible,’ not 8 simply ‘imaginary or speculative.’ ” Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm’n, 220 F.3d 1134, 9 1140 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc) (citing Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 298).

10 Although the Government now takes the position that the Order carries no legal force, in 11 its public statements and through its actions it has repeatedly indicated its intent to enforce the 12 Order. The Executive Order was passed on January 27, 2017. Although the defunding provision 13 has not yet been enforced against any jurisdiction, governmental leaders have made numerous 14 statements reaffirming the Government’s intent to enforce the Order and to use the threat of 15 withholding federal funds as a tool to coerce states and local jurisdictions to change their policies.
 16 On February 5, 2017, after signing the Executive Order, President Trump confirmed that he was 17 willing and able to use “defunding” as a “weapon” so that sanctuary cities would change their 18 policies. See Harris Decl. Ex. B (Tr. of Feb. 5, 2017 Bill O’Reilly Interview with President 19 Donald J. Trump) at 4 (SC Dkt. No. 36-2) (“I don’t want to defund anybody. I want to give them 20 the money they need to properly operate as a city or a state. If they’re going to have sanctuary 21 cities, we may have to do that. Certainly that would be a weapon.”).⁶

22 Sean Spicer, the White House press secretary, has confirmed that the Government intends 23 to enforce the order, stating that the President intended to ensure that “counties and other 24 institutions that remain sanctuary cities don’t get federal government funding in compliance with

 2 cited favorably the actions of Miami-Dade County Mayor Carlos Giménez who, one day after the 3 Executive Order, instructed his Interim Director of Corrections to “honor all immigration detainer 4 requests” “[i]n light of the Executive Order.” See RJN-1, Ex. C (SF Dkt. No. 29-3).⁸ Lauding 5 Miami-Dade’s actions, Spicer noted that Miami-Dade “understand[s] the importance of this order” 6 and encouraged other jurisdictions to follow its lead. Harris Decl. Ex. C at 4-5.

7 Attorney General Sessions recently reaffirmed the Government’s intent to enforce the 8 defunding provisions, stating that if jurisdictions do not comply with Section 1373, such violations 9 would result in “withholding grants, termination of grants, and disbarment or ineligibility for 10 future grants,” and that the Government would seek to “claw back any funds awarded to a 11 jurisdiction that willfully violates 1373.” Sessions Press Conference at 2.⁹ When asked at a 12 subsequent press briefing about this claw back process, Spicer confirmed that the Government’s 13 “priority is clear, is to get cities into – into compliance and to make sure we understand there’s not 14 just a financial impact of this, but also a very clear security aspect of this.” RJN-3, Ex. C at 15

21 ⁹ In addition to these statements, the Government began to implement Section 9(b) of the 22 Executive Order, which is designed to “better inform the public regarding the public safety threats 23 associated with sanctuary jurisdictions” and requires ICE to publish a weekly “Declined Detainer Outcome Report” containing a public list of all “criminal actions committed by aliens and any 24 jurisdiction that ignored or otherwise failed to honor any detainers with respect to such aliens.”
 See RJN-2, Ex. H. (SF Dkt. No. 61-8). Due to concerns that the weekly reports contained 25 inaccurate information, the Declined Detainer Outcome Report has been “temporarily suspended” but “ICE remains committed to publishing the most accurate information available regarding 26 declined detainers across the country.” Declined Detainer Outcome Report, ICE,

 27 notice of the ICE’s Declined Detainer Outcome Reports as courts may judicially notice information contained on official government websites. See Daniels-Hall, 629 F.3d at 998-999.

28 ¹⁰ I take judicial notice of Spicer’s March 31, 2017 press briefing as courts may judicially notice information contained on official government websites. See Daniels-Hall, 629 F.3d at 998-999.

1 Government’s argument in the briefing that the Order does not change the law. They have 2 repeatedly indicated an intent to defund sanctuary jurisdictions in compliance with the Executive 3 Order. The Counties’ concerns that the Government will enforce the defunding provision are well 4 supported by the Government’s public statements and actions, all of which are consistent with 5 enforcing the Order.

6 Finally, in addition to demonstrating that the Government is likely to enforce the Order, 7 the Counties have demonstrated that the Government is particularly likely to target them and the 8 funds on which they rely. In a February 5, 2017 interview, President Trump specifically 9 threatened to defund California, stating: “I’m very much opposed to sanctuary cities. They breed 10 crime. There’s a lot of problems. If we have to we’ll defund, we give tremendous amounts of 11 money to California . . . California in many ways is out of control.” See Harris Decl. Ex. B. The 12 Counties have established that they both receive large percentages of their federal funding through 13 the State of California, and that they would suffer injury if California was “defunded.” In a recent 14 joint letter to Chief Justice Cantil-Sakauye of the California Supreme Court, Attorney General 15 Sessions and Secretary Kelly again called out the State of California, as well as its cities and 16 counties, for their sanctuary policies: “Some jurisdictions, including the State of California and 17 many of its largest counties and cities, have enacted statutes and ordinances designed to 18 specifically prohibit or hinder ICE from enforcing immigration law by prohibiting communication 19 with ICE, and denying requests by ICE officers and agents to enter prisons and jails to make 20 arrests.” RJN-3, Ex. A (SF Dkt. No. 74-1).¹¹ ICE has identified California, Santa Clara County, 21 and San Francisco as jurisdictions with policies that “Restrict Cooperation with ICE” and has 22 identified Santa Clara County Main Jail and San Francisco County Jail as two of eleven detention 23 centers with the “highest volume of detainers issued” that “do not comply with detainers on a 24 routine basis.” RJN-3, Ex. B (SF Dkt. No. 74-2).

25 The President and the Attorney General have also repeatedly held up San Francisco 26

27 ¹¹ I take judicial notice of Attorney General Sessions’s and Secretary Kelly’s letter as an official 28 government document. See Mack, 789 F.2d at 1282.

1 specifically as an example of how sanctuary policies threaten public safety. In his statements to 2 the press on March 27, 2017, Attorney General Sessions referenced the tragic death of Kate 3 Steinle and noted that her killer “admitted the only reason he came to San Francisco was because 4 it was a sanctuary city.” Sessions Press Conference at 1. In an op-ed recently published in the 5 San Francisco Chronicle, the Attorney General wrote that “Kathryn Steinle might be alive today if 6 she had not lived in a ‘sanctuary city’ ” and implored “San Francisco and other cities to re-7 evaluate these policies.” RJN-3, Ex. D (SF Dkt. No. 74-4).¹² These statements indicate not only 8 the belief that San Francisco is a “sanctuary jurisdiction” but that its policies are particularly 9 dangerous and in need of change. They also reveal a choice by the Government to hold up San 10 Francisco as an exemplar of a sanctuary jurisdiction.

11 The Government argues that despite these public statements, San Francisco and Santa 12 Clara cannot demonstrate a credible threat of enforcement because the Government has not 13 actually threatened to enforce the Executive Order against them. It points to Thomas v. Anchorage 14 Equal Rights Commission, in which the Ninth Circuit, sitting en banc, concluded that plaintiffs 15 lacked standing to challenge an Alaska law prohibiting landlords from discriminating against 16 tenants on the basis of their marital status. Thomas, 220 F.3d at 1137. In finding the case was 17 non-justiciable, the court highlighted that “[n]o action has ever been brought against the landlords 18 to enforce the marital status provision.” Id. at 1140. However, this was not the only fact 19 informing the court’s analysis: it also noted that plaintiffs could not point to concrete facts 20 showing that they had ever violated the law or were planning to violate it, it stressed that the 21 enforcement agency tasked with enforcing the Alaska law had never heard of plaintiffs before the 22 case was filed, and it emphasized that in 25-years on the books the law had been minimally 23 enforced (resulting in only two civil enforcement actions and no criminal prosecutions). Id. None 24 of these facts are present here.

25 The Government’s specific criticisms of San Francisco, Santa Clara, and California 26

27 ¹² I take judicial notice of Attorney General Sessions’s statements in his op-ed as the veracity of 28 these statements “can be accurately and readily determined from sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned.” Fed. R. Evid. § 201 (b)(2).

1 support a well-founded fear that San Francisco and Santa Clara will face enforcement directly 2 under the Executive Order, or could be subject to defunding indirectly through enforcement 3 against California.¹³ San Francisco and Santa Clara have shown that their current practices and 4 policies are targeted by the Order. They have demonstrated that, in the less-than-three months 5 since the Order was signed, the Government has repeatedly indicated its intent to enforce it. And 6 they have established that the Government has specifically highlighted Santa Clara and San 7 Francisco as jurisdictions with sanctuary policies. On these facts, Santa Clara and San Francisco 8 have demonstrated that the “threat of enforcement [is] credible, not simply imaginary or 9 speculative.” Id. (internal quotation marks omitted).

10 c. The Counties’ claims implicate a constitutional interest

11 The Counties’ claims implicate a constitutional interest, the rights of states and local 12 governments to determine their own local policies and enforcement priorities pursuant to the 13 Tenth Amendment. See Alfred L. Snapp & Son, Inc. v. Puerto Rico, ex rel., Barez, 458 U.S. 592, 14 601 (1982) (highlighting that states have a sovereign interest in “the exercise of sovereign power 15 over individuals and entities within the relevant jurisdiction—this involves the power to create and 16 enforce a legal code, both civil and criminal”); see also New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 144, 17 157-158 (1992) (“[T]he Tenth Amendment confirms that the power of the Federal Government is 18 subject to limits that may, in a given instance, reserve power to the States.”).

19 The Counties explain that their sanctuary policies “reflect local determinations about the 20 best way to promote public health and safety.” SF Mot. at 19 (SF Dkt. No. 21). In contrast to the 21 Order’s assertion that sanctuary jurisdictions are a “public safety threat[],” the Counties contend 22 that, in their judgment and experience, sanctuary policies make the community safer by fostering 23 trust between residents and local law enforcement. Among other things, this community trust 24 encourages undocumented residents to cooperate with police and report crimes, see Individual the State Superintendent of Instruction echo the reasons given by the Counties to demonstrate standing here.

 6 Dkt. No. 64-1); Public Schools’ Amicus Brief at 7 (SF Dkt. No. 58-1).¹⁴

7 The Counties have demonstrated that their sanctuary policies reflect their local judgment of 8 what policies and practices are most effective for maintaining public safety and community health.
 9 Because they argue that the Executive Order seeks to undermine this judgment by attempting to 10 compel them to change their policies and enforce the Federal government’s immigration laws in 11 violation of the Tenth Amendment, their claims implicate a constitutional interest. See Virginia ex 12 rel. Cuccinelli v. Sebelius, 656 F.3d 253, 269 (4th Cir. 2011) (“when a federal law interferes with 13 a state’s exercise of its sovereign ‘power to create and enforce a legal code’ [] it inflict[s] on the 14 state the requisite injury-in-fact.”); Ohio ex rel. Celebrezze v. U.S. Dep’t of Transp., 766 F.2d 228,

d. The Counties are threatened with the loss of federal grants and face a present injury in the form of budgetary uncertainty

The Counties assert that the Order threatens to penalize them for failing to comply with Section 1373 and for failing to honor detainer requests by withholding all federal funds, or at least all federal grants. Section 9(a) does not threaten all federal funding, but it does include all federal grants, which still make up a significant part of the Counties' budgets. This threatened injury meets Article III's standing requirements. A "loss of funds promised under federal law [] satisfies Article III's standing requirement." Organized Village of Kake v. U.S. Dep't of Agric., 795 F.3d 956, 965 (9th Cir. 2015).

The Counties also explain that the need to mitigate a potential sudden loss of federal funds has thrown their budgeting processes into uproar: they cannot make informed decisions about whether to keep spending federal funds on needed services for which they may not be reimbursed; they are forced to make contingency plans to deal with a potential loss of funds, including placing funds in a budget reserve in lieu of spending that money on needed programs; and the obligation to mitigate potential harm to their residents and drastic cuts to services may ultimately compel them to change their local policies to comply with what they believe to be an unconstitutional Order. The potential loss of all federal grants creates a contingent liability large enough to have real and concrete impacts on the Counties' ability to budget and plan for the future. As discussed in more detail below, the Counties have demonstrated that they are suffering a present "injury [] inflicted by the mere existence and threatened enforcement of the [Order]." Village of Euclid, 272 U.S. at 385. In addition to the threatened loss of funds, this may also establish Article III standing.

A sudden loss of grant funding would have another effect. The Counties receive large portions of their federal grants through reimbursement structures – the Counties first spend their own money on particular services and then receive reimbursements from the federal government based on the actual services provided. Marquez Decl. ¶ 15. Because these funds are spent on an ongoing basis, at all times the Counties are expecting, and relying on, millions of dollars in federal reimbursements for services already provided. A sudden cut to funding, including a cut to these reimbursements, could place them immediately in significant debt. A sudden and unanticipated cut mid-fiscal year would substantially increase the injury to the Counties by forcing them to make

1 even more drastic cuts to absorb the loss of funds during a truncated period in order to stay on 2 budget. Whitehouse Decl. ¶ 9.

3 San Francisco explains that a mid-year loss of only $120 million in federal funding would:
4 require the City to make significant cuts to critical services and would result in reductions in the 5 numbers of first responders, such as police officers, firefighters, and paramedics; require severe 6 cuts to the City's MUNI transportation system; threaten the Mayor's program to end chronic 7 veterans' homelessness by 2018; and likely require cuts to social services, such as senior meals, 8 safety net services for low-income children, and domestic violence prevention services.

9 Whitehouse Decl. ¶17. Because federal grants support key government services, San Francisco 10 asserts that, without clarity about the funds the Order could withhold or claw back, it will need to 11 allocate millions of dollars to a budget reserve on May 15, 2017 to prepare for the potential loss of 12 significant funds during the 2017 fiscal year. Whitehouse Decl. ¶8, 10, 15. Any funds placed in a 13 reserve fund will not be available to fund other City programs and services for the 2017 fiscal 14 year, which would result in a dollar-for-dollar reduction in services the City is able to provide its 15 residents. Id. 13-14.

16 Santa Clara asserts that the current budgetary uncertainty puts it in an "untenable position."
17 Marquez Decl. ¶4. It explains that Santa Clara's budget for the current fiscal year is already in 18 place and was developed based on careful weighing of various factors, including anticipated 19 revenues, specific service needs, salary and benefits for the County's 19,000 employees, and the 20 County's fiscal priorities. Id. ¶12. Because Santa Clara operates federally funded programs on a 21 daily basis, and incurs costs in anticipation that it will be reimbursed, its ability to provide these 22 services depends on the County having some confidence that it will continue to receive the federal 23 reimbursements and funds on which it depends. With the Order's unclear and broad language 24 threatening a significant cut to funding, the County does not know "whether to (1) continue 25 incurring hundreds of millions of dollars in costs that may never be reimbursed by the federal 26 government, (2) discontinue basic safety-net services delivered to its most vulnerable residents, or 27 (3) in an attempt to avoid either of these outcomes, be effectively conscripted into using local law 28 enforcement and other resources to assist the federal government in its immigration enforcement

1 efforts.” Id. at 11.

2 The Government argues that governmental budgeting always suffers from some 3 uncertainty due to fluctuations in cost and tax revenues so any uncertainty caused by the Executive 4 Order does not make “an otherwise certain endeavor [] less certain.” While local budgeting 5 always suffers from some uncertainty, as addressed immediately above, it is the magnitude of the 6 present uncertainty and the fact that the Executive Order places at risk funds on which the 7 Counties could previously rely that is causing them harm. The Government also argues that the 8 Counties’ concerns would not be addressed by enjoining the Executive Order because “the Order 9 does not alter or expand existing law governing the Federal Government’s discretion to revoke or 10 deny a grant where the grantee violates legal requirements.” As discussed supra in Section I.A.1, 11 I reject this unpersuasive interpretation of the Order.

12 Finally, the Government asserts that budgetary uncertainty is too abstract to meet Article 13 III’s standing requirements and cites Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission v. National 14 Football League, 634 F.2d 1197, 1201 (9th Cir. 1980). The facts of that case are not analogous to 15 this one. There, the Coliseum Commission alleged that there was a reasonable likelihood that the 16 Raiders were “seriously interested” in moving to Los Angeles but that they were unlikely to get 17 the necessary votes from the NFL to approve a transfer under the existing rules. The Ninth Circuit 18 concluded that the Commission’s speculative allegations were not sufficient to establish standing 19 to challenge the transfer approval rules. Id. While the Commission alleged it was likely to suffer 20 losses in revenues as a result of the transfer rules, it made no argument that the NFL’s rules caused 21 the type of significant budget uncertainty alleged here.

22 The Counties cite Clinton v. City of New York, 524 U.S. 417, 438 (1998), which is on 23 point. There, the Court considered whether the City of New York was injured when President 24 Clinton cancelled a section of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 that waived the federal 25 government’s right to recover certain past taxes from New York. Id. at 422. This cancellation 26 meant that the state was again potentially liable for remitting close to $2.6 billion to the 27 Department of Health and Human Services (“HHS”), and would have to wait for a determination 28 from the HHS as to whether it would grant the state’s requests to waive those taxes. Id. The

1 Court rejected the government’s argument that the City’s injuries were too speculative. It 2 concluded that although there was still a potential that New York’s taxes would be waived, the 3 President’s cancellation had deprived New York of the benefits of the law, which were akin to the 4 certainty of a favorable final judgment. Id. at 430-31. It reasoned, “the revival of a substantial 5 contingent liability immediately and directly affects the borrowing power, financial strength, and 6 fiscal planning of the potential obligor” and constitutes an injury-in-fact. Id. at 430-31.

7 While President Clinton’s cancellation in City of New York revived a contingent liability, 8 President Trump’s Executive Order creates a contingent liability, potentially placing hundreds of 9 millions of dollars of the Counties’ federal grants at risk. The Counties have explained the 10 concrete impact this new liability has had in disrupting their ability to budget, make decisions 11 regarding what services to provide, and plan for the future. The potential loss of funds also 12 impacts the Counties potential borrowing power and financial strength – San Francisco notes that 13 it has already received inquiries from credit rating agencies about the Executive Order and its 14 impact on San Francisco’s finances. Rosenfield Decl. ¶31. This budget uncertainty is not 15 abstract. It has caused the Counties real and tangible harms. They have adequately demonstrated 16 that budgetary uncertainty of the type threatened by the Executive Order can constitute an injury-17 in-fact sufficient for Article III standing.

18 e. The Counties meet the requirements for pre-enforcement 19 standing

20 In sum, the Counties have established a well-founded fear of enforcement under the 21 Executive Order. They have demonstrated that, under their reasonable interpretation of the Order, 22 their local policies are proscribed by Section 9’s language. They have demonstrated that the 23 Government intends to enforce the Order against them specifically. And they have demonstrated 24 that their claims against the Order implicate a constitutional interest – their Tenth Amendment 25 rights to self-governance. The Counties have shown “an intention to engage in a course of 26 conduct arguably affected with a constitutional interest, but proscribed by a statute, and there 27 exists a credible threat of prosecution thereunder.” Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 298. Further, the 28 Counties have demonstrated that the Order threatens to withhold federal grant money and that the

1 threat of the Order is presently causing the Counties injury in the form of significant budget 2 uncertainty. The Counties' well-founded fear of enforcement of Section 9(a) is sufficient to 3 demonstrate Article III standing.

4 B. Ripeness

5 The Government also argues that the Counties' claims are not justiciable because they are 6 not "prudentially ripe." In assessing prudential ripeness, a court considers "both the fitness of the 7 issues for judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration." 8 Abbott Labs. v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 149 (9th Cir. 1989). The Supreme Court has called into 9 question "the continuing vitality of the prudential ripeness doctrine" and highlighted that 10 prudential ripeness is distinct from constitutional ripeness. Susan B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 11 2347 (holding that a claim was justiciable, even though the Court had not yet assessed its 12 prudential ripeness, because "we have already concluded that petitioners have alleged a sufficient 13 Article III injury"). Regardless, the Counties' claims meet the "fitness" and "hardship" factors of 14 prudential ripeness.

15 "A claim is fit for decision if the issues raised are primarily legal, do not require further 16 factual development, and the challenged action is final." Standard Alaska Prod. Co. v. Schaible, 17 874 F.2d 624, 627 (9th Cir. 1989). The Government asserts that the Counties' claims are not yet 18 fit for review because "[i]mplementation of Section 9 'rests upon [several] contingent future 19 events'— including clarification of some of its terms — and those terms may ultimately be defined 20 such as to exclude the County or its grants or otherwise to greatly diminish the Order's 21 'anticipated' impact." SC Oppo. at 17 (citing Texas v. United States, 523 U.S. 296, 300 (1998)).

22 In Texas v. United States, Texas sought a declaration that a state provision allowing the 23 State Commissioner of Education to appoint a special master to impose sanctions against school 24 districts falling below the state's accreditation requirements did not violate Section 5 of the Voting 25 Rights Act. 523 U.S. at 299. The Court concluded that this claim was not ripe for review because 26 the relevant statute would only come into play if a school district fell below the state's standard, if 27 the Commissioner had unsuccessfully attempted to impose a number of other less intrusive 28 measures first, and if the Commissioner then decided a special master was necessary. Id. at 300.

1 Given the various uncertain future events, and that the state could not identify any school district 2 to which the Commissioner was likely to appoint a special master, the Court concluded that the 3 claim was not yet fit for review. Id.

4 The Government argues that, because it must still determine what the terms of the Order 5 mean and how it will enforce it, the Counties' claims are not fit for review, just like the state's 6 claim in Texas. This argument is not convincing. The "contingent future events" the Government 7 identifies are always at issue in a pre-enforcement case; before actual enforcement occurs the 8 enforcing agency must determine what the statute means and to whom it applies. Under the 9 Government's line of reasoning, virtually all pre-enforcement cases would be non-justiciable on 10 prudential ripeness grounds. But the possibility that the Government "may" choose to interpret 11 the Order's broad language narrowly or "may" choose not to enforce it against the Counties does 12 not justify deferring review. This is especially true here because, as the Counties highlight, the 13 uncertainty concerning how the Government will enforce the Order is currently causing them 14 injury. Given the statements of the President and Attorney General, the Counties have every 15 reason to be concerned about budgeting decisions, are struggling to determine whether to continue 16 to provide, or cut services, and are expending time and resources planning for the contingency of 17 losing federal funds. The Counties challenge the Executive Order as written; a decision to enforce 18 it sparingly cannot impact whether it is unconstitutional on its face. The Counties' claims do not 19 require further factual development, are legal in nature, and are brought against a final Executive 20 Order. They are fit for review.

21 "To meet the hardship requirement, a litigant must show that withholding review would 22 result in direct and immediate hardship and would entail more than possible financial loss."
23 Winter v. Cal. Med. Review, Inc., 900 F.2d 1322, 1325 (9th Cir. 1989) (internal quotation marks 24 omitted). The Government argues that the "uncertainties surrounding the implementation of 25 Section 9 and the need for 'factual development' greatly outweigh any 'hardship' to the Count[ies] 26 from awaiting those developments." SC Oppo. at 17-18. But the "uncertainties" created by the 27 broad, vague language of the Order, its unconstitutional directives, and the comments of the 28 President and Attorney General about what type of conduct and which jurisdictions it targets are

1 causing the Counties present harm. Without clarity the Counties do not know whether they should 2 start slashing essential programs or continue to spend millions of dollars and risk a financial crisis 3 in the near future. They are forced to choose “between taking immediate action to [their] 4 detriment and risking substantial future penalties for non-compliance.” Chamber of Commerce of 5 U.S. v. Reich, 57 F.3d 1099, 1100-01 (D.C. Cir. 1995). Waiting for the Government to decide 6 how it wants to apply the Order would only cause more hardship and would not resolve the legal 7 question at issue: whether Section 9(a) as written is unconstitutional. The Counties’ claims are 8 prudentially ripe.

9 The Counties have established Article III standing and their claims are justiciable. They 10 have also demonstrated that their claims are prudentially ripe for review.

11 II. LIKELIHOOD OF SUCCESS ON THE MERITS

12 The Counties challenge the Executive Order on several constitutional grounds and bear the 13 burden of demonstrating a likelihood of success on the merits. The Government presents no 14 defense to these constitutional arguments; it focused on standing and ripeness. I conclude that the 15 Counties have demonstrated likely success on the merits in several ways.

16 A. Separation of Powers

17 The Counties argue that the Executive Order is unconstitutional because it seeks to wield 18 powers that belong exclusively to Congress, the spending powers. Article I of the Constitution 19 grants Congress the federal spending powers. See U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 1. “Incident to this 20 power, Congress may attach conditions on the receipt of federal funds, and has repeatedly 21 employed the power ‘to further broad policy objectives by conditioning receipt of federal moneys 22 upon compliance by the recipient with federal statutory and administrative directives.’ ” South 23 Dakota v. Dole, 483 U.S. 203, 206 (1987) (citing Fullilove v. Klutznick, 448 U.S. 448, 474 (1980) 24 (emphasis added). While the President may veto a Congressional enactment under the 25 Presentment Clause, he must “either ‘approve all the parts of a Bill, or reject it in toto.’ ” City of 26 New York, 524 U.S. at 438 (quoting 33 Writings of George Washington 96 (J. Fitzpatrick ed.,
28 at 439.

1 This is true even if Congress has attempted to expressly delegate such power to the 2 President. Id. In City of New York, the Supreme Court concluded that the Line Item Veto Act, 3 which sought to grant the President the power to cancel particular direct spending and tax benefit 4 provisions in bills, was unconstitutional as it ran afoul of the “ ‘finely wrought’ procedures 5 commanded by the Constitution” for enacting laws. Id. at 448 (quoting INS v. Chadha, 462 U.S.
6 919, 951 (1983)). While Congress can delegate some discretion to the President to decide how to 7 spend appropriated funds, any delegation and discretion is cabined by these constitutional 8 boundaries.

9 After a bill becomes law, the President is required to “take Care that the Law be faithfully 10 executed.” See U.S. Const. art. II, § 3, cl. 5. Where Congress has failed to give the President 11 discretion in allocating funds, the President has no constitutional authority to withhold such funds 12 and violates his obligation to faithfully execute the laws duly enacted by Congress if he does so.
13 See City of New York, 524 U.S. at 439; U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 1. Further, “[w]hen the President 14 takes measures incompatible with the expressed or implied will of Congress, his power is at its 15 lowest ebb . . .” Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. v. Sawyer, 343 U.S. 579, 637 (1952) (Jackson, J., 16 concurring). Congress has intentionally limited the ability of the President to withhold or 17 “impound” appropriated funds and has provided that the President may only do so after following 18 particular procedures and after receiving Congress’s express permission. See Impoundment 19 Control Act of 1974, 2 U.S.C. §§ 683 et seq.

20 The Executive Order runs afoul of these basic and fundamental constitutional structures.
21 The Order’s stated purpose is to “ensure that jurisdictions that fail to comply with applicable 22 Federal law do not receive Federal funds, except as mandated by law.” EO §2. To effectuate this 23 purpose, the Order directs that “the Attorney General and the Secretary, in their discretion and to 24 the extent consistent with law, shall ensure that jurisdictions that willfully refuse to comply with 8
25 U.S.C. 1373 (sanctuary jurisdictions) are not eligible to receive Federal grants, except as deemed 26 necessary for law enforcement purposes by the Attorney General or the Secretary.” EO §9(a).
27 Section 9 purports to give the Attorney General and the Secretary the power to place a new 28 condition on federal funds (compliance with Section 1373) not provided for by Congress. But the

1 President does not have the power to place conditions on federal funds and so cannot delegate this 2 power.

3 Section 9 is particularly problematic as Congress has repeatedly, and frequently, declined 4 to broadly condition federal funds or grants on compliance with Section 1373 or other federal 5 immigration laws as the Executive Order purports to do. See, e.g., Ending Sanctuary Cities Act of 6 2016, H.R. 6252, 114th Cong. (2016); Stop Dangerous Sanctuary Cities Act, S. 3100, 114th Cong.
7 (2016); Stop Dangerous Sanctuary Cities Act, H.R. 5654, 114th Cong. (2016); Stop Sanctuary
8 Policies and Protect Americans Act, S. 2146, 114th Cong. (2016). This puts the President's power 9 "at its lowest ebb." Youngstown, 343 U.S. at 637. The Order's attempt to place new conditions on 10 federal funds is an improper attempt to wield Congress's exclusive spending power and is a 11 violation of the Constitution's separation of powers principles.

12 B. Spending Clause Violations

13 The Counties also argue that, even if the President had the spending power, the Executive 14 Order would be unconstitutional under the Tenth Amendment as it exceeds those powers. The 15 Counties are likely to succeed on this claim as well.

16 While Congress has significant authority to encourage policy through its spending power, 17 the Supreme Court has articulated a number of limitations to the conditions Congress can place on 18 federal funds. The Executive Order likely violates at least three of these restrictions: (1) 19 conditions must be unambiguous and cannot be imposed after funds have already been accepted; 20 (2) there must be a nexus between the federal funds at issue and the federal program's purpose; 21 and (3) the financial inducement cannot be coercive.

22 1. Unambiguous Requirement

23 When Congress places conditions on federal funds "it must do so unambiguously" so that 24 states and local jurisdictions contemplating whether to accept such funds can "exercise their 25 choice knowingly, cognizant of the consequences of their participation." Dole, 483 U.S. at 203 26 (internal quotation marks omitted). Because states must opt-in to a federal program willingly,
28 See Nat'l Fed. of Indep. Bus. v. Sebelius ("NFIB"), 132 S. Ct. 2566, 2602-04 (2012). "The

1 legitimacy of Congress’s exercise of the spending power thus rests on whether the state 2 voluntarily and knowingly accepts the terms of the contract” at the time Congress offers the 3 money. Id. at 2602.

4 The Executive Order purports to retroactively condition all “federal grants” on compliance 5 with Section 1373. As this condition was not an unambiguous condition that the states and local 6 jurisdictions voluntarily and knowingly accepted at the time Congress appropriated these funds, it 7 cannot be imposed now by the Order. In addition, while the Order’s language refers to all federal 8 grants, the Government’s lawyers say it only applies to three grants issued through the 9 Departments of Justice and Homeland Security. If the funds at stake are not clear, the Counties 10 cannot voluntarily and knowingly choose to accept the conditions on those funds.

11 Finally, as discussed infra in Section II.D., the Order’s vague language does not make 12 clear what conduct it proscribes or give jurisdictions a reasonable opportunity to avoid its 13 penalties. See discussion re vagueness infra Section II.D. The unclear and untimely conditions in 14 the Executive Order fail the “unambiguous” restriction because the Order does not make clear to 15 states and local governments what funds are at issue and what conditions apply to those funds, 16 making it impossible for them to “voluntarily and knowingly accept[] the terms of the contract.”
17 NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2602.

18 2. Nexus Requirement

19 The conditions placed on congressional spending must have some nexus with the purpose 20 of the implicated funds. “Congress may condition grants under the spending power only in ways 21 reasonable related to the purpose of the federal program.” Dole, 483 U.S. at 213. This means that 22 funds conditioned on compliance with Section 1373 must have some nexus to immigration 23 enforcement.

24 The Executive Order’s attempt to condition all federal grants on compliance with Section 25 1373 clearly runs afoul of the nexus requirement: there is no nexus between Section 1373 and 26 most categories of federal funding, including without limitation funding related to Medicare, 27 Medicaid, transportation, child welfare services, immunization and vaccination programs, and 28 emergency preparedness. The Executive Order inverts the nexus requirement, directing the 1 Attorney General and Secretary to cut off all federal grants to “sanctuary jurisdictions” but giving 2 them discretion to allow “sanctuary jurisdictions” to receive grants “deemed necessary for law 3 enforcement purposes.” EO § 9(a). As the subset of grants “deemed necessary for law 4 enforcement purposes” likely includes any federal funds related to immigration enforcement, the 5 Executive Order expressly targets for defunding grants with no nexus to immigration enforcement 6 at all. This is the precise opposite of what the nexus test requires.

7 3. Not Coercive Requirement

8 Finally, Congress cannot use the spending power in a way that compels local jurisdictions 9 to adopt certain policies. Congress cannot offer “financial inducement . . . so coercive as to pass 10 the point at which pressure turns to compulsion.” Dole, 483 U.S. at 211 (internal quotation marks 11 omitted). Legislation that “coerces a State to adopt a federal regulatory system as its own” “runs 12 contrary to our system of federalism.” NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2602. States must have a “legitimate 13 choice whether to accept the federal conditions in exchange for federal funds.” Id. at 2602-2603.

14 In NFIB, the Supreme Court concluded that the Affordable Care Act’s threat of denying 15 Medicaid funds, which constituted over 10 percent of the State’s overall budget, was 16 unconstitutionally coercive and represented a “gun to the head.” Id. at 2604. The Executive Order 17 threatens to deny sanctuary jurisdictions all federal grants, hundreds of millions of dollars on 18 which the Counties rely. The threat is unconstitutionally coercive.

19 C. Tenth Amendment Violations

20 The Counties argue that Section 9(a) violates the Tenth Amendment because it attempts to 21 conscript states and local jurisdictions into carrying out federal immigration law. The Counties 22 are likely to succeed on this claim as well.

23 “The Federal Government may not compel the States to enact or administer a federal 24 regulatory program.” New York, 505 U.S. at 188. “The Federal Government may neither issue 25 directives requiring the States to address particular problems, nor command the States’ officers, or 26 those of their political subdivisions, to administer or enforce a federal regulatory program.” Printz 27 v. United States, 521 U.S. 898, 935 (1997). “That is true whether Congress directly commands a

1 NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2602.

2 As discussed with regard to the Counties' standing arguments, the Counties have 3 demonstrated that under their reasonable interpretation, the Order equates "sanctuary 4 jurisdictions" with "any jurisdiction that ignored or otherwise failed to honor any detainers" and 5 therefore places such jurisdictions at risk of losing all federal grants. See EO §9(b). The Counties 6 have shown that losing all of their federal grant funding would have significant effects on their 7 ability to provide services to their residents and that they may have no legitimate choice regarding 8 whether to accept the government's conditions in exchange for those funds. To the extent the 9 Executive Order seeks to condition all federal grants on honoring civil detainer requests, it is 10 likely unconstitutional under the Tenth Amendment because it seeks to compel the states and local 11 jurisdictions to enforce a federal regulatory program through coercion.

12 Even if the Order does not condition federal grants on honoring detainer requests, it 13 certainly seeks to compel states and local jurisdictions to comply with civil detainers by directing 14 the Attorney General to "take appropriate enforcement action against any entity that violates 8 15 U.S.C. 1373, or which has in effect a statute, policy, or practice that prevents or hinders the 16 enforcement of Federal law." EO §9(a). Although the Order provides no further clarification on 17 what this "enforcement" might entail or what policies might "hinder[] the enforcement of Federal 18 law," Attorney General Sessions, who is tasked with implementing this provision, has equated 19 failure to honor civil detainer requests with policies that "frustrate th[e] enforcement of 20 immigration laws." See Sessions Press Conference at 2. Reading the Order in light of the 21 Attorney General's public statements, it threatens "enforcement action" against any jurisdiction 22 that refuses to comply with detainer requests or otherwise fails to enforce federal immigration law.
23 While this threat of "enforcement" is left vague and unexplained, "enforcement" by its own
24 definition means to "compel[] compliance." See BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 645 (10th ed. 2014)
25 (defining "enforcement" as "The act or process of compelling compliance with a law, mandate, 26 command, decree, or agreement.") By seeking to compel states and local jurisdictions to honor 27 civil detainer requests by threatening enforcement action, the Executive Order violates the Tenth 28 Amendment's provisions against conscription.

1 The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that, “The Federal Government cannot compel the 2 States to enact or administer a federal regulatory program.” New York, 505 U.S. at 188. The 3 Government cannot command them to adopt certain policies, id. at 188, command them to carry 4 out federal programs, Printz, 521 U.S. at 935, or otherwise to “coerce them into adopting a federal 5 regulatory system as their own,” NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2602. The Executive Order uses coercive 6 means in an attempt to force states and local jurisdictions to honor civil detainer requests, which 7 are voluntary “requests” precisely because the federal government cannot command states to 8 comply with them under the Tenth Amendment. The Executive Order attempts to use coercive 9 methods to circumvent the Tenth Amendment’s direct prohibition against conscription. While the 10 federal government may incentivize states to adopt federal programs voluntarily, it cannot use 11 means that are so coercive as to compel their compliance. The Executive Order’s threat to pull all 12 federal grants from jurisdictions that refuse to honor detainer requests or to bring “enforcement 13 action” against them violates the Tenth Amendment’s prohibitions against commandeering.

14 D. Fifth Amendment Void for Vagueness

15 The Counties assert that the Executive Order is unconstitutionally vague in violation of the 16 Fifth Amendment’s Due Process Clause. A law is unconstitutionally vague and void under the 17 Fifth Amendment if it fails to make clear what conduct it prohibits and if it fails to lay out clear 18 standards for enforcement. See Gaynard v. City of Rockford, 408 U.S. 104, 108 (1972). To 19 satisfy due process we insist that laws (1) “give the person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable 20 opportunity to know what is prohibited, so that he may act accordingly” and (2) “provide explicit 21 standards for those who apply them.” Id. The Executive Order does not meet either of these 22 requirements.

23 The Executive Order does not make clear what conduct might subject a state or local 24 jurisdiction to defunding or enforcement action, making it impossible for jurisdictions to 25 determine how to modify their conduct, if at all, to avoid the Order’s penalties. The Order clearly 26 directs the Attorney General and Secretary to ensure that jurisdictions that “willfully refuse to 27 comply” with Section 1373, “sanctuary jurisdictions,” are not eligible to receive federal grants.
28 The Government repeatedly emphasizes in its briefing that it does not know what it means to

1 “willfully refuse to comply” with Section 1373. See, SC Oppo. at 11. Past DOJ guidance and 2 various court cases interpreting Section 1373 have not reached consistent conclusions as to what 3 1373 requires. In the face of conflicting guidance, and no clear standard from the Government, 4 jurisdictions do not know how to avoid the Order’s defunding penalty.

5 Further, because the Order does not clearly define “sanctuary jurisdictions” the conduct 6 that will subject a jurisdiction to defunding under the Order is not fully outlined. This is further 7 complicated because the Order gives the Secretary unlimited discretion to make “sanctuary 8 jurisdiction” designations. But, at least as of two months ago, the Secretary himself stated that he 9 “do[esn’t] have a clue” how to define “sanctuary city.” Harris Decl. ex. D (Dep’t of Homeland
10 Sec., Pool Notes from Secretary Kelly’s Trip to San Diego, Feb. 10, 2017) at 3 (SC Dkt. No. 36-11 4). If the Secretary has unbounded discretion to designate “sanctuary jurisdictions” but has no 12 idea how to define that term, states and local jurisdictions have no hope of deciphering what 13 conduct might result in an unfavorable “sanctuary jurisdiction” designation.

14 In addition, the Order directs the Attorney General to take “appropriate enforcement 15 action” against any jurisdiction that willfully refuses to comply with Section 1373 or otherwise 16 has a policy or practice that “hinders the enforcement of Federal law.” This provision vastly 17 expands the scope of the Order. What does it mean to “hinder” the enforcement of federal law?
18 What federal law is at issue: immigration laws? All federal laws? The Order offers no 19 clarification.

20 The Order also fails to provide clear standards to the Secretary and the Attorney General to 21 prevent “arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement.” Id. As discussed above, the Order gives the 22 Secretary discretion to designate jurisdictions as “sanctuary jurisdictions” to the extent consistent 23 with law. But there are no laws, besides the Order, outlining what a sanctuary jurisdiction is, 24 leaving the Secretary with unfettered discretion and the Order’s vague language to make 25 “sanctuary jurisdiction” designations. Similarly, the Order directs the Attorney General to take 26 “appropriate enforcement action” against any jurisdiction that “hinders the enforcement of Federal 27 law.” This expansive, standardless language creates huge potential for arbitrary and 28 discriminatory enforcement, leaving the Attorney General to figure out what “appropriate

1 enforcement action” might entail and what policies and practices might “hinder[] the enforcement
2 of Federal law.” This language is “so standardless that it authorizes or encourages seriously 3 discriminatory enforcement.” United States v. Williams, 553 U.S. 285, 304 (2008).

4 The Order gives the Counties no clear guidance on how to comply with its provisions or 5 what penalties will result from non-compliance. Its standardless guidance and enforcement 6 provisions are also likely to result in arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement. It does not “give 7 the person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what is prohibited, so that he 8 may act accordingly.” Gaynard, 408 U.S. at 108. The Counties are likely to succeed in their 9 argument that Section 9(a) is void for vagueness under the Fifth Amendment.

10 E. Fifth Amendment Procedural Due Process Violations

11 The Counties assert that the Executive Order fails to provide them with procedural due 12 process in violation of the Fifth Amendment. To sustain a valid procedural due process claim a 13 person must demonstrate that he has a legally protectable property interest and that he has suffered 14 or will suffer a deprivation of that property without adequate process. See Thorton v. City of St.
15 Helens, 425 F.3d 1158, 1164 (9th Cir. 2005).

16 To have a legitimate property interest, a person “must have more than a unilateral 17 expectation of it. He must, instead, have a legitimate claim of entitlement to it.” Bd. of Regents v.
18 Roth, 408 U.S. 564, 577 (1972). A state or local government has a legitimate claim of entitlement
19 to congressionally appropriated funds, which are akin to funds owed on a contract. See NFIB, 132
20 S. Ct. at 2602 (“The legitimacy of Congress’ power to legislate under the spending power [] rests 21 on whether the State voluntarily and knowingly accepts the terms of the ‘contract.’”). The 22 Counties have a legitimate property interest in federal funds that Congress has already 23 appropriated and that the Counties have accepted.

24 The Executive Order purports to make the Counties ineligible to receive these funds 25 through a discretionary and undefined process. The Order directs the Attorney General and 26 Secretary to designate various states and local jurisdictions as “sanctuary jurisdictions,” ensure 27 that such jurisdictions are “not eligible” to receive federal grants, and “take enforcement action” 28 against them. EO §9(a). It does not direct the Attorney General or Secretary to provide

1 “sanctuary jurisdictions” with any notice of an unfavorable designation or impending cut to 2 funding. And it does not set up any administrative or judicial procedure for states and local 3 jurisdictions to be heard, to challenge enforcement action, or to appeal any action taken against 4 them under the Order. This complete lack of process violates the Fifth Amendment’s due process 5 requirements. Matthew v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 349 (1976) (“The essence of due process is the 6 requirement that a person in jeopardy of serious loss be given notice of the case against him and 7 opportunity to meet it.”) (internal alterations and quotations omitted).

8 The Government’s only defense of the Order’s lack of process is to claim that Section 9’s 9 provision that it be implemented “consistent with law” reads in all necessary procedural 10 requirements. Again, the Government’s attempt to resolve all of the Order’s constitutional 11 infirmities with a “consistent with law” bandage is not convincing. There is no dispute that while 12 the Order commands the Secretary to designate certain jurisdictions as ineligible for federal grants 13 and directs the Attorney General to bring an “enforcement action” against them, it provides no 14 process at all for notifying jurisdictions about such a determination and provides them no 15 opportunity to be heard. The Counties are likely to succeed on their claim that the Order fails to 16 provide adequate due process in violation of the Fifth Amendment.

17 III. IRREPARABLE HARM

18 The Counties assert that, absent an injunction enjoining Section 9, they are likely to suffer 19 irreparable harm resulting from their current budget uncertainty. Alternatively, they argue that 20 they are suffering a constitutional injury, as the Order improperly seeks to coerce them into 21 changing their policies in violation of the Tenth Amendment. The Counties have adequately 22 demonstrated that they are likely to suffer irreparable harm under both of these theories.

23 A. Budgetary Uncertainty

24 The Counties allege that they are currently suffering irreparable injury resulting from the 25 substantial uncertainty caused by the Order’s unclear terms and its broad and undefined scope. As 26 discussed above, this uncertainty is causing the Counties present injury sufficient to satisfy Article 27 III’s standing requirements. See discussion supra Section I.A.2.d.

28 This budget uncertainty is also causing the Counties irreparable harm, and it will continue

1 to do so absent an injunction. The Order’s uncertainty interferes with the Counties’ ability to 2 budget, plan for the future, and properly serve their residents. Without clarification regarding the 3 Order’s scope or legality, the Counties will be obligated to take steps to mitigate the risk of losing 4 millions of dollars in federal funding, which will include placing funds in reserve and making cuts 5 to services. These mitigating steps will cause the Counties irreparable harm. See United States v.
6 North Carolina, 192 F. Supp. 3d 620, 629 (M.D.N.C. 2016) (there was irreparable harm where the 7 unavailability of funds was “likely to have an immediate impact on [the state’s] ability to provide 8 critical resources to the public, causing damage that would persist regardless of whether funding 9 [was] subsequently reinstated”).

10 Although Government counsel has represented that the Order will be implemented 11 consistent with law, this assurance is undermined by Section 9(a)’s clearly unconstitutional 12 directives. Further, through public statements, the President and Attorney General have appeared 13 to endorse the broadest reading of the Order. Is the Order merely a rhetorical device, as counsel 14 suggested at the hearing, or a “weapon” to defund the Counties and those who have implemented a 15 different law enforcement strategy than the Government currently believes is desirable? The 16 result of this schizophrenic approach to the Order is that the Counties’ worst fears are not allayed 17 and the Counties reasonably fear enforcement under the Order.

18 The Order’s broad directive and unclear terms, and the President’s and Attorney General’s 19 endorsement of them, has caused substantial confusion and justified fear among states and local 20 jurisdictions that they will lose all federal grant funding at the very least. The threat of the Order 21 and the uncertainty it is causing impermissibly interferes with the Counties’ ability to operate, to 22 provide key services, to plan for the future, and to budget. The Counties have established that, 23 absent an injunction, they are likely to suffer irreparable harm.

24 B. Constitutional Injury

25 The Counties also argue that they are likely to suffer irreparable harm because the 26 Executive Order contravenes the separation of powers, conscripts the Counties to carry out federal 27 immigration enforcement policies, and seeks to coerce the Counties into changing their local 28 policies by imposing overwhelming financial penalties without due process. This “constitutional 1 injury” also constitutes irreparable harm.

2 The Ninth Circuit has repeatedly held that “the deprivation of constitutional rights
3 ‘unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury.’ ” Melendres v. Arpaio, 695 F.3d 990, 1002 (9th
4 Cir. 2012); Rodriguez v. Robbins, 715 F.3d 1127, 1144-45 (9th Cir. 2013). A plaintiff can suffer a 5 constitutional injury by being forced to comply with an unconstitutional law or else face financial 6 injury or enforcement action. See Am. Trucking Ass’ns, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles, 559 F.3d 7 1046, 1058-59 (9th Cir. 2009) (plaintiffs were injured where they were faced with the choice of 8 signing unconstitutional agreements or facing a loss of customer goodwill and significant 9 business). The Supreme Court has similarly indicated that plaintiffs suffer irreparable injury
10 under such circumstances. See Morales v. Trans World Airlines, Inc., 504 U.S. 374, 380-381 11 (1992) (injunctive relief was available where “respondents were faced with a Hobson’s choice:
12 continually violate the Texas law and expose themselves to potentially huge liability; or violate 13 the law once as a test case and suffer the injury of obeying the law during the pendency of the 14 proceedings and any further review”). Where an executive action causes constitutional injuries, 15 injunctive relief is appropriate. See Washington v. Trump, 847 F.3d 1151, 1169 (9th Cir. 2017)
16 (refusing to stay a preliminary injunction on Executive Order 13769 and reaffirming that a 17 “deprivation of constitutional rights unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury”).

18 The Counties currently must choose either to attempt to comply with the Executive Order, 19 which they have alleged is unconstitutional under the Constitution’s separation of powers 20 structures and violates their Tenth and Fifth Amendment rights, or to defy the Order and risk 21 losing hundreds of millions of dollars in federal grants. By forcing the Counties to make this 22 unreasonable choice, the Order results in a constitutional injury sufficient to establish standing and 23 irreparable harm.

24 The Government argues that while a “deprivation of constitutional rights unquestionably 25 constitutes irreparable injury,” the Counties have not alleged a “deprivation” of their constitutional 26 rights but have instead alleged a violation of the constitutional structures that govern relationships 27 among the branches of the Federal Government. It asserts that there is a distinction between 28 violations of personal constitutional rights and violations of structural provisions. See N.Y. State

1 Rest. Ass'n v. N.Y. City Bd. of Health, 545 F. Supp. 2d 363, 367 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) (“[W]hile a 2 violation of constitutional rights can constitute per se irreparable harm . . . per se irreparable harm 3 is caused only by violations of ‘personal’ constitutional rights . . . to be distinguished from 4 provisions of the Constitution that serve ‘structural’ purposes, like the Supremacy Clause.”).

5 This argument fails for two reasons. First, this distinction between personal and structural 6 constitutional rights is not recognized in the Ninth Circuit. Although the Government cites to 7 American Trucking Ass'ns v. City of Los Angeles, 577 F. Supp. 2d 1110, 1127 (C.D. Cal. 2008) for 8 the proposition that “in the case of Supremacy Clause violations,” the presumption of irreparable 9 harm “is not necessarily warranted,” that case was reversed by the Ninth Circuit. On appeal the 10 court concluded that, even where the constitutional injury is structural, “the constitutional 11 violation alone, coupled with the damages incurred, can suffice to show irreparable harm.” 12 American Trucking, 559 F.3d at 1058. Second, the Counties have alleged a deprivation of their 13 personal constitutional rights; they have alleged that the Executive Order is unconstitutionally 14 coercive in violation of the Tenth Amendment and fails to provide them with Due Process in 15 violation of the Fifth Amendment. The Government’s challenges to the Counties’ claims of 16 constitutional injury are not supported by the facts of this case or the precedent that is binding on 17 this court.

18 The Counties have adequately demonstrated a constitutional injury sufficient to establish a 19 likelihood of irreparable harm.

20 IV. BALANCE OF HARMS AND PUBLIC INTEREST

21 A party seeking a preliminary injunction must “establish . . . that the balance of equities 22 tips in his favor, and that an injunction is in the public interest.” Winter, 555 U.S. at 20. When the 23 federal government is a party, these factors merge. Nken v. Holder, 556 U.S. 418, 435 (2009).

24 The Government argues that the balance of harms and the public interest weigh against a 25 preliminary injunction because the “most pertinent and concretely expressed public interest” in 26 this case is contained in Section 1373, and Section 9 simply seeks to ensure compliance with that 27 section. This argument is unconvincing given the Government’s flawed argument that Section 9 28 does not change the law. If Section 9 does not change the law, or if the Government does not

1 intend to enforce Section 9’s unlawful directives, then it provides the Government with no 2 concrete benefit but to highlight the President’s enforcement priorities. The President certainly 3 has the right to use the bully pulpit to encourage his policies. But Section 9(a) is not simply 4 rhetorical. The Counties have a strong interest in avoiding unconstitutional federal enforcement
 5 and the significant budget uncertainty that has resulted from the Order’s broad and threatening 6 language. To the extent the Government wishes to use all lawful means to enforce 8 U.S.C. 1373, 7 it does not need Section 9(a) to do so. The confusion caused by Section 9(a)’s facially 8 unconstitutional directives and its coercive effects weigh heavily against leaving it in place. The 9 balance of harms weighs in favor of an injunction.

10 V. NATIONWIDE INJUNCTION

11 The Government argues that, if an injunction is issued, it should be issued only with 12 regards to the plaintiffs and should not apply nationwide. But where a law is unconstitutional on 13 its face, and not simply in its application to certain plaintiffs, a nationwide injunction is 14 appropriate. See Califano v. Yamasaki, 442 U.S. 682, 702 (1979) (“[T]he scope of injunctive 15 relief is dictated by the extent of the violation established, not by the geographical extent of the 16 plaintiff.”); Washington, 847 F.3d at 1166-67 (affirming nationwide injunction against executive 17 travel ban order). The Counties have demonstrated that they are likely to succeed on their claims 18 that the Executive Order purports to wield powers exclusive to Congress, and violates the Tenth 19 and Fifth Amendments. These constitutional violations are not limited to San Francisco or Santa 20 Clara, but apply equally to all states and local jurisdictions. Given the nationwide scope of the 21 Order, and its apparent constitutional flaws, a nationwide injunction is appropriate.

22 VI. INJUNCTION AGAINST THE PRESIDENT

23 The Government also argues that, if an injunction is issued, it should not issue against the 24 President. An injunction against the President personally is an “extraordinary measure not lightly 25 to be undertaken.” Swan v. Clinton, 100 F.3d 973, 978 (D.C. Cir. 1996); see Newdow v. Bush, 391 26 F. Supp. 2d 95, 106 (D.D.C. 2005) (“[T]he Supreme Court has sent a clear message that an 27 injunction should not be issued against the President for official acts.”). The Counties assert that 28 the court “has discretion to determine whether the constitutional violations in the Executive Order may be remedied by an injunction against the named inferior officers, or whether this is an extraordinary circumstance where injunctive relief against the President himself is warranted.”

I conclude that an injunction against the President is not appropriate. The Counties seek to enjoin the Executive Order which directs the Attorney General and the Secretary to carry out the provisions of Section 9. The President has no role in implementing Section 9. It is not clear how an injunction against the President would remedy the constitutional violations the Counties have alleged. On these facts, the extraordinary remedy of enjoining the President himself is not appropriate.

CONCLUSION

The Counties have demonstrated that they are likely to succeed on the merits of their challenge to Section 9(a) of the Executive Order, that they will suffer irreparable harm absent an injunction, and that the balance of harms and public interest weigh in their favor. The Counties’ motions for a nationwide preliminary injunction, enjoining enforcement of Section 9(a), are GRANTED. The defendants (other than the President) are enjoined from enforcing Section 9(a) of the Executive Order against jurisdictions they deem as sanctuary jurisdictions. This injunction does not impact the Government’s ability to use lawful means to enforce existing conditions of federal grants or 8 U.S.C. 1373, nor does it restrict the Secretary from developing regulations or preparing guidance on designating a jurisdiction as a “sanctuary jurisdiction.”

IT IS SO ORDERED.
